AGA Treasurer's Report for 2017/18

By James Kaaden

I would like to start by acknowledging the hard work of Horatio Davis, who stepped down as Treasurer during this term. We wish him well in his future endeavours.

The 2017/2018 financial year has built and improved on the solid foundation of the previous year. In spite of paying $570 in dues owed from the previous financial year, we have maintained a healthy $543 budget surplus and a corrected change in equity of $1058.04. This was achieved through the careful management of expenses, down $872 from the previous year.

Membership remain steady from last year, an important metric as it contributes to the bulk of the AGA's income and allows us to operate and cover our overheads.

Thanks to the stability of our financial position, the AGA have begun to plan new projects, putting this surplus income towards initiatives that will directly benefit our members. Thank you to all of you who have contributed, and we hope that you will enjoy what we have planned for the 2018/2019 year and beyond.
